PORTS OF CALL

Split, Croatia

Split's palm fringed promenade is the ideal location for watching boats and ferries entering and departing from the busy harbor. Coffee shops, bars, restaurants, and hip boutiques attract visitors from around the globe. Walk through the Bronze Gates, and marvel at Diocletian's Palace and the Temple of Jupiter. This is ancient history, and you're living it now!

Hvar Island

Summer lavender fields are always in bloom in the essential oils and sachets sold in the outdoor marketplace. You'll find hints of lavender in sparkling wine, pastries, and cookies too. A fortress stands watch on the hill, monastery bells ring, and the lively chatter and laughter of happy tourists spills from seaside cafes to the beautiful beaches.

Viz Island

Fisherman from Viz ply the Adriatic in their traditional Falkusa sail boats. The landscape here is peppered with 12th century monasteries and Romanesque churches, one of which we can all relate to --Our Lady of Pirates! Visit soft pebble beaches, natural springs, and wineries that produce grappa, the perfect finale at any Croatian meal.

Polace

A ripple from a fallen leaf or a passing school of fish confirms that these are lakes that you're staring into in Mljet National Park. Slip into the cool refreshing water, hike the natural trails through lush greenery up to beautiful vistas, or explore nature by kayak or bike.

Dubrovnik

When arriving by sea, you will be awestruck by the massive, ancient city walls that loop around the heart of Croatia. Climb up Mincenta Towers, or take a cable car for a bird's eye view of Dubrovnik. Old Town pulses with energy. Sidewalk cafes serve thimbles of coffee, along with the freshest fish and seafood you've ever savored. Game of Thrones fans will recognize many spots featured in the popular series.

Kotor, Montenegro

Small but packed with things to see and do, lose track of time exploring Kotor's magnificent cathedrals, fortresses, and hidden alleyways. Each turn inspires you to discover more of this tiny Mediterranean gem.

Continued

Šipan Island

Picture a village of red-roofed stone houses, framed by forested hills. You have arrived in Šipan, the largest island in the archipelago of Elephati. Here you will be wowed by the remains of a 1529 renaissance castle, as well as Pakljena Tower, which dates back to 1563. Olives, figs, and citrus grow wild and scent the air of this sun-drenched paradise.

Korčula Island

There's no whining about wine on this fabulous island. You'll sip some of the best in the region. It's said that Marco Polo was born on Korčula. We have to wonder why he would leave the stunning beaches, the mouth-watering tapas, and the finest wines, to discover China!

Brac Island

Breathtakingly scenic views can be found everywhere in Brac, and are not to be missed. Buy fresh olive oil straight from the shade of one of the olive trees that produced it, while enjoying a chat with the property owners. Pucisca is described as one of the prettiest villages in Europe. Local quarries provide the white stone used in the gleaming buildings and statues. Brac's most famous landmark is probably Zlatni Rat (Golden Horn) Beach. Here you'll find hipsters, tourists, and locals alike filling the beach bars and sun loungers.

Trogir

If you're not afraid of heights and don't suffer from claustrophobia, we dare you to climb to the bell tower in the Cathedral of St. Lawrence. You're guaranteed panoramic views, along with an aerobic workout! Those who prefer to chill with a cold beverage or dish of gelato should head down to the city square, and enjoy the local street performers. Kamerango Castle is a popular attraction, along with people-watching on Okrug beach.
